Scott Leese

Scott has invested twenty years as an executive, peak performance and life coach in helping busy executives and community leaders with rapid transformation. As president of Dynamic Coaching Strategies in Los Angeles, Scott uses techniques that align vision, mission and identity so that clients fully achieve personal and professional goals. He assists clients in reconnecting to their Core Center of decision making. Patterns, beliefs, and behaviors unfold automatically without effort or having to focus on a list of instructions. His integrative coaching encompasses short term approaches with lasting results. Scott holds a B.S. in psychology from Abilene Christian University and a master's degree from Pepperdine University. He is certified as a corporate coach and as a master practitioner in neuro-linguistic programming (NLP). Scott also serves as an industry advisor for the Larta Institute, an organization that connects people and innovation for commercialization.
